Blood Pact – First Playable Findings & Feedback

First Playable Overview

In the first playable, we used our early prototype cards and tokens to test the game with a small group of players. To help everyone understand the game, we first played a practice round in which all players knew one another's roles. This open round lets players focus on learning the voting and resolving missions. It went well as players easily understood the impact of their votes, and how missions played out. Once players understood how the game worked. We played an actual game where players accused each other, trying to make out who was loyal and who was a vampire. The mission phase added tension as everybody was watching closely when the votes were cast and missions resolved, reacting to each reveal and the uncertainty of the outcomes.

Key Takeaways

From this playtest, we learned:

- The game requires players to understand rules quickly because this enables them to start playing right away.
- The game structure with voting followed by Mission and then Reveal creates a clear sequence that helps players track the game progression.
- The game content suits players aged 15 and above because it demands advanced social and logical thinking abilities.
- Physical tokens will make the voting and mission processes easier.
- Overall, the balance and tension feel good once players know what they're doing.

Player Feedback and Ratings

Players rated their experience as follows:

- Fun: 8 / 10
- Difficulty: 4.5 / 10
- Tactics/Strategy: 6.5 / 10

Next Steps

For the next version, we plan to make these updates:

- We are going to custom tokens which will enable players to track their voting and mission progress.
- The rulebook will contain detailed explanations for each round.
- We will use shorter and more clear explanations.
- The game will include a Role/Rules Reference Card similar to Coup which allows players to check role abilities and winning conditions.
- We increased the age range to 15+ because of the complexity and social deduction.
